

Commercial re-use

All articles published by Dove Medical Press ("DMP") are published and distributed under the Creative Commons non-commercial use licenses.

Any breach of the license terms will automatically terminate the license, and DMP reserves all rights to commence legal action for a breach of the license terms.

The articles published on and distributed from the Dove Medical Press ("DMP") website at <http://www.dovepress.com>, or available at any journal indexing websites or any other website that provides access to any DMP published articles or any part of an article (including, but not limited to the abstract, figures, tables) may not be distributed, make copies or reproduce, in any media or format, all or any of the articles in any manner that is primarily intended for or directed toward commercial advantage or monetary compensation without the prior written consent of Dove Medical Press, and the payment to Dove Medical Press of an appropriate fee.

For the avoidance of doubt, providing a hyperlink to a DMP article in a manner that is primarily intended for or directed toward commercial advantage or monetary compensation shall be a breach of the license terms.

Examples of commercial re-use

This following non-exhaustive list includes, but is not limited to examples of commercial re-use.

If you cannot find an example below that meets your intended use of a DMP published article, please contact the Publisher in the first instance.

- Provision, distribution or reproduction, via transfer of ownership by sale or otherwise, of any DMP article or any part of an article (including, but not limited to the abstract, figures, tables) as a printed paper, electronic paper or as a hyperlink:
 - via URL or similar to support marketing (including, but not limited to electronic marketing) activities;
 - in any media or format to email in response to medical information requests;
 - in any media or format to support activities at a conference booth to provide articles to delegates;
 - in any media or format as resource material on a company or product-specific website;
 - in any media or format to support company training of any individuals for any purpose;
 - in any media or format for use by medical liaison representatives;
 - in any media or format to supplement or replace a purchased paper or electronic reprint of any published DMP article.
 - on any third party website (including, but not limited to PubMed, CNKI, and similar) for any commercial benefit, advantage or private monetary compensation.

Author(s) employed in commercial institutions

Author(s) employed, for gain or otherwise, or associated or allied to any commercial institution (including but not limited to the list of examples above) shall NOT reproduce, distribute, link or post their DMP published paper on their company website in any manner that is primarily intended for or directed toward commercial advantage or monetary compensation without first obtaining the prior written permission of DMP. DMP reserves all rights to institute legal proceedings against the author(s) and/or their institution in such circumstances.