Figure S1. Identified differentially expressed pyroptosis-related genes (DPRGs). (A) Venn diagram analysis showed that the overlap of differentially expressed genes and 33 pyroptosis-related genes led to seven DPRGs being identified. (B) Cross-validation for tuning parameter selection in the LASSO (least absolute shrinkage and selection operator) model. The cross-validation error was minimal when five genes were selected. (C) LASSO coefficient profiles of the seven DPRGs. (D) Bouts of cross-validation error was minimal when four DPRGs were selected by SVM-RFE (support vector machine recursive feature elimination) algorithms.

Figure S2. The expression level of differentially expressed pyroptosis-related genes in the training and the validation dataset. (A) The expression level of CASP4, PLCG1, CASP9 and NLRC4 in the training set (GSE131282 microarray). In brain tissues, there tended to be high variability of gene expression in different areas. Moreover, postmortem interval affects the RNA levels and integrity which could be accountable for the lower expression of CASP4 even though occurred pyroptosis. (B) The expression level of CASP4, PLCG1 and CASP9 in the validation set (GSE135511 microarray). The missing of NLRC4 probe in the GSE135511 dataset led to absence of NLRC4 signal. The expression trends of CASP4 and PLCG1 were different in GSE131282 and GSE135511 presumably due to sample volume or sample handling in GSE135511. As such, to better simulate real expression of these genes, we validated their expression level of mRNA in EAE models.
